

The photo shows a monkey playing with its young one.

REAL

The image illustrates how animals go through a life that is similar to that of human beings. People also show the same love to their loved ones. Mothers always play with their young ones which promotes a sense of love towards each other. Animals should as well be treated like human beings because they too have feelings.

To instill from the young age the act of love and responsibility in the youth.